

Coronavirus (COVID-19) Update for State Regulatory Boards

April 27, 2020

In response to the COVID-19 pandemic, we want to provide you with the most recent update on our ongoing efforts to continue assisting all constituent groups while also protecting the health and safety of our staff and volunteer leaders. We are in unprecedented times, but we are confident in the resilience of our community and know that we will weather this crisis together.

The NCCAOM staff in Washington, DC, is working remotely since the pandemic announcement and we are 100 percent operational. Our Professional Ethics and Disciplinary Review (PEDR) Committee is ready to assist you should any issues arise.

Many of our Diplomates and applicants have reached out to us for resources and guidance on issues related to COVID-19 and we have compiled a number of useful resources and updates on our coronavirus resource page. In addition, the NCCAOM in collaboration with American Society of Acupuncturists (ASA) is hosting weekly Town Halls with professional and legislative updates on the CARES Act. Please join us for our next Town Hall scheduled for April 29 at 8 PM EST.

NCCAOM Adaptive exam administration begins on May 18, 2020 pending testing centers opening and we are continuously working with Pearson VUE on available options if government regulations prevent or reduce the availability of examination center locations. Pearson VUE continues to post test center status reports here.

NCCAOM appreciates our partnership with state regulatory agencies and will continue to work together with your office and all our stakeholders during this national crisis. We will communicate with you as situations change during the coming weeks. Our best wishes to all state agencies and their staff during this critical time.
